Dictate a story you learned in history.

Once there was a people called the Israelites. The Israelites were descendants of Joseph. They lived in Egypt, a country in the continent of Africa. Egypt is in the desert where it is hot. They were made slaves by the Egyptians. The Egyptians thought the Hebrews were going to have power over them. The Hebrew slaves were building Egyptian monuments. Pharaoh's daughter found a basket with a little baby in it, called Moses. When Moses grew up, God helped him to save his people. There were plagues because Pharaoh of Egypt did not let Moses's people go. God sent many plagues to make Pharaoh let the Hebrews go. One of the plagues that God sent killed Pharaoh's son. That made Pharaoh let Moses's people go. Moses became the Hebrews' leader. Then, when they went out of Egypt, God helped Moses open the sea so the people could cross. Pharaoh's heart hardened and he tried to kill the Israelites but when he went into the sea's opening, the sea splashed down on him and every Egyptian that came was killed. The Israelites crossed the Red Sea.
